

Public biological systems expose residence-amplitude structure across measurement classes

